

Problem Statement:

Students lose belongings frequently on campus and have no way of knowing if those belongings have been found, stolen, or where they first left them.

How was this issue discovered:

People frequently post on the UofSC Snapchat stories about how they lost something or found something.

Why is this an issue:

There isn't usually a way for people to verify the person who claims an item is the actual owner. There also isn't one place for students to look when they've lost an item, or one place to look when they have found and want to return an item.

Who does this issue affect:

Students on campus who have lost or found items on or around campus.
